RE: Federal Election Commission's Proposed Revisions to 11 C.F.R. § 110
Implementing the Bipartisan Campaign Finance Reform Act
("BCRA"); 67 Fed. Reg. 54366 (August 22, 2002)

Dear Ms. Dinh:

We are writing to comment on a particular issue raised by the FEC in the preamble to its August 22, 2002, proposed rule implementing certain provisions of the Bipartisan Campaign Finance Reform Act. Specifically, the FEC notes that BCRA modified existing 2 U.S.C. § 441e(a) to prohibit political contributions made by foreign nationals "directly or indirectly." The statute previously banned contributions made "directly or through any other person." 67 Fed. Reg. at 54372. The FEC questions the significance of the language change, concluding that there is no clarifying legislative history and inviting comments on potential interpretations. The FEC then asks whether the word "indirectly" should be read more broadly than the previous phrase "through any other person," and therefore should result in broader prohibitions than those currently in force. Specifically, the FEC asks comments to address whether BCRA should be read to prohibit political contributions from United States subsidiaries of foreign corporations.

The legislative history of BCRA makes clear that Congress did intend to impose additional restrictions on contributions from foreign nationals, including contributions in state and local elections and to various kinds of political organizations. The proposed rule addresses these clearly intended changes. However, as explained below, we do not believe Congress intended to expand the ban to include contributions otherwise legally made by U.S. subsidiaries of foreign corporations.

The banning of all political contributions from U.S. subsidiaries of foreign corporations would be a major departure from existing federal election law and the regulations of the Commission. Corporations organized under the laws of one or more of the states of the United States are not typically treated as foreign nationals under state or federal law, but rather as corporate "persons" with a "presence" in the state of incorporation and in their principal place(s) of business. There are at least several such corporations with a significant presence in our State of Nevada; they pay millions of dollars in federal and state taxes, employ thousands of Nevada workers and put millions of dollars into the local economies of the communities in the state. They also organize political action committees and make political contributions in compliance with federal law and the rules of the Commission.

Neither Congress nor the FEC has ever treated such entities as foreign nationals, though both have taken other regulatory steps to ensure that the contributions of foreign nationals do not support the political activities of such U.S. subsidiaries. For instance, under 2 U.S.C. §441e, a foreign national who is a shareholder, executive or other employee of a U.S. subsidiary, or a family member, may not make contributions to the subsidiary's political action committee and may not be asked to contribute. Further, Commission rules bar foreign nationals from forming political committees (11 C.F.R. 100.6 and 114.1(a)(2)(iii)).

If Congress had intended to make a change of this significance in the campaign finance laws of the United States, it certainly would have done so explicitly or would have explained its intent in the voluminous legislative history of BCRA, as was the case with the many other changes we made in existing law. The Commission itself notes in the preamble to the proposal that there is no clarifying legislative history. To our knowledge there is not a single aspect of the BCRA legislative history that would establish this significant change as the real intent of Congress.

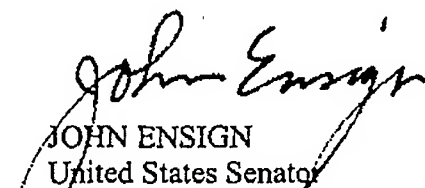

Besides the fact that there is no legislative history supporting a ban on political contributions from U.S. subsidiaries, the language of BCRA itself does not support this interpretation. In other words, it is by no means automatically the case that a political contribution from a U.S. subsidiary originates "indirectly" with the foreign parent. In fact, under existing law it seems that the reverse is true. Any contribution from a political action committee of a U.S. subsidiary would be required to come only from individual contributors who are themselves U.S. citizens. Likewise, corporate contributions otherwise legally made must come from the revenues of the U.S. subsidiary to meet existing Commission requirements.

As members of the United States Senate who participated in many discussions with the primary sponsors of BCRA and who were present for much of the debate of the bill on the Senate floor, we are confident that the interpretation posited by the Commission in the proposed rule was never intended or even considered by the authors of the legislation. It was simply never raised as an issue that needed to be addressed. Existing law and Commission rules are fully adequate to keep foreign corporations from contributing to federal election campaigns through their U.S. subsidiaries, and there was never any suggestion to the contrary during the long efforts to enact campaign finance reform.

We, therefore, respectfully urge the Commission not to adopt any interpretation of BCRA that would ban or burden political contributions by U.S. subsidiaries.

Sincerely,

HARRY REID

Capital Eye Report: Aides, Lobbyists and Contributors Among Those Left in Wake of Sen

Despite a lack of support from key leaders in his own political party, Sen. John Ensign (R-Nev.) said resolutely this week that he has no plans to resign from Congress in the face of accusations that he's deeply embroiled in an ethics scandal. But it's not just his own party's support at risk -- campaign contributors, current and former staffers and even lobbyists may be re-considering their ties to a man who once served as the GOP's primary fund-raiser in the Senate.

Last week the New York Times broke the story that Ensign had helped his long-time friend and aide Douglas Hampton join a political consulting firm and lined up several campaign donors as his lobbying clients, after Ensign had an affair with Hampton's wife. The newspaper went on to speculate whether Ensign's actions violated restrictions that were signed into law in 2007 that prohibit lobbying by former Senate staffers for 12 months after their departures.

For his part, Ensign maintains that he "fully complied with the relevant laws and rules governing current and past employees." Of course, a New York Times exposé on a scandal this salacious will send ripples through the political community. Three high-profile staffers had already left for other jobs in the fallout of the news in June that Ensign had had an extramarital affair. At this point there's no way to determine just how "radioactive" these accusations will be, but we thought we'd trace some of the senator's financial connections to see which individuals and companies may try to put some distance between themselves and the senator.

Members of Congress

Money exchanges hands between lawmakers frequently and as the man at the helm of the GOP's Senate fund-raising efforts, Ensign was instrumental in ensuring not just that money was coming in, but that it was being transferred to the candidates who needed it most.

And so he set an example by generously giving away his own funds. Since he was elected to the House of Representatives in 1994, Ensign has contributed nearly $661,000 of his own campaign cash to the leadership PACs and candidate committees of other current or former lawmakers. Only 12 other senators, past or present, have given more money through their leadership PACs and only nine senators have contributed more money through their candidate committees.

Thirty-four current lawmakers, all Republican, are tied to Ensign, who became a senator in 2000, in this way. He's given them at least $279,650 through his candidate committees and leadership PAC (called Battle Born PAC) since 1994. In light of recent news, will they now be tempted to return that money? Will they be persuaded to do so?

Here are the top 20 current lawmakers to get a little help from Ensign since 1994 (including contributions from his campaign committee or leadership PACs to theirs):

Name	Total
Rep. Dean Heller (R-Nev)	$20,000
Sen. James W DeMint (R-SC)	$18,000
Sen. John Thune (R-SD)	$16,000
David Vitter (R-La)	$15,000
Sen. Lamar Alexander (R-Tenn)	$11,000
Sen. Saxby Chambliss (R-Ga)	$11,000
Sen. John A Barrasso (R-Wyo)	$10,000
Sen. Richard Burr (R-NC)	$10,000
Sen. Tom Coburn (R-Okla)	$10,000
Sen. Susan Collins (R-Maine)	$10,000
Sen. Bob Corker (R-Tenn)	$10,000
Sen. James M Inhofe (R-Okla)	$10,000
Sen. Michael O Johanns (R-Neb)	$10,000
Sen. Jon L Kyl (R-Ariz)	$10,000
Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-Ky)	$10,000
Rep. Jerry Moran (R-Kan)	$10,000
Sen. James E Risch (R-Idaho)	$10,000
Sen. Pat Roberts (R-Kan)	$10,000
Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-Ala)	$10,000
Sen. Roger Wicker (R-Miss)	$10,000

Of course, Ensign also relies on the kindness of his colleagues. Through their leadership PACs, members of Congress have given Ensign more money since 1994 than all but four economic industries - casinos and gambling, health professionals, real estate companies and insurers. Ensign has collected $594,500 from other lawmakers' committees, both past and presents, which is more than he has brought in from lawyers and law firms, retirees, securities and investment companies and other groups since 1994.

Thirty-seven current lawmakers have given back to the senator nearly the full amount that he's doled out to them during his time in office: $265,550. His biggest fan over the years, at least measured by dollar amount, seems to be Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.), who has been withholding comment on Ensign's alleged misconduct, the Times reported. Through his candidate committees and leadership PAC, McConnell has funneled $37,000 to Ensign over the years.

Here are the top 20 current lawmakers to lend a helping financial hand to Ensign since 1994

(including contributions from their campaign committee or leadership PACs to his):

At least one political candidate has said he's going to keep Ensign's money. Rep. Zach Wamp (R-Tenn.), who is running for governor in Tennessee, "ignored calls to return donations from his Washington housemate, Sen. John Ensign (R-Nev.)," Politico reported this week. Wamp accepted a $5,000 contribution from Ensign "just days after the senator admitted he was ensnared in a sex scandal with a former staffer."

Staffers

At least three high-profile staffers have left Ensign's orbit after the news broke of his affair with Cynthia Hampton. This includes the departure of ex-chief of staff John Lopez, ex-communications director Tory Mazzola and Mike Slanker, who worked with Ensign as the political director of the Republican National Senatorial Committee, which Ensign chaired.

Lopez went through the revolving door between the public and private sectors and joined R&R Partners, a lobby shop that earned $425,000 during the first six months of 2009. Mazzola moved to New Hampshire to be the New England spokesman of the National Republican Congressional Committee. And Slanker joined the Senate campaign of former WWE chief executive Linda McMahon.

According to the New York Times exposé, Ensign consulted with Slanker to help Doug Hampton land a job in the private sector at Slanker's well-connected firm, known as November Inc. Ensign did not mention the affair to Slanker at the time, and Slanker took Hampton in. According to the newspaper, Slanker told Hampton, "Whatever clients you can get -- you can eat what you kill."

Slanker also told the New York Times that if his company had been engaged in any improper lobbying efforts by hiring Hampton, he wanted to make amends. He told the reporters that the whole situation now makes him "sick to my stomach."

Previously, Slanker, and his wife, Lindsey, had been generous donors to Ensign over the years. The couple has given $20,590 to Republican candidates and committees since 2000 and Ensign topped the list of their beneficiaries. They gave Ensign $8,450 between 2000 and 2006, according to a Center for Responsive Politics review of campaign finance records.

They have also given Rep. Jon Porter (R-Nev.) $6,500 since 2000, $2,000 to Rep. Dean Heller (R-Nev.) since 2005, $2,000 to Alabama Republican congressional candidate Wayne Parker in 2008 and $1,640 to the Republican Party of Nevada in 2000.

Senate ethic rules prohibit staffers from donating to their "employing authority." A Center for Responsive Politics review could not discern campaign contributions to any federal candidates, leadership PACs or party committees from Mazzola. CRP found that Lopez made three small contributions to congressional Republicans: $250 to House candidate and former Rep. Anne Northup (R-Ky.) in 2008 and $250 to Rep. Porter in both 2006 and 2008.

Lopez told the New York Times that he had raised concerns about the interactions of Doug Hampton with Ensign, which is why Ensign assigned him to be the point-person for Hampton's contact with the office. He described any meetings he had with Hampton to the Times as merely "informational," and added, "Did Doug advocate and try to lobby in a couple of instances? Absolutely. But that's his problem."

A CRP review of federal campaign finance records also showed no contributions above the Federal Election Commission's $200 disclosure threshold for either Doug or Cynthia Hampton.

Campaign Contributors and Lobbyists

Since he began his first term in Congress, Ensign has collected more than $18.6 million from special interests through his candidate committees alone. Now his biggest contributors will have to decide whether they will keep sending money his way (his next election is in 2012) or whether they might want to sever ties with the embattled lawmaker.

Not surprisingly, the Nevada senator's top three all-time donors are all casino or resort companies based in Las Vegas -- MGM Mirage, which has given Ensign $291,750 since 1994;

Mandalay Resort Group, which has contributed $252,550; and Station Casinos, which has given $132,850.

Here are Ensign's top 20 donors since 1994 (including only contributions to his candidate committees):

Donor	Total
MGM Mirage	$291,760
Mandalay Resort Group	$252,525
Station Casinos	$132,855
Sierra Health Services	$97,985
Tiberti Co	$94,910

AT&T Inc	$75,350
AG Spanos Companies	$72,610
Boyd Gaming	$59,999
Blue Cross/Blue Shield	$54,600
Novogradac & Co	$52,300
International Game Technology	$51,000
American Medical Association	$50,250
American Veterinary Medical Association	$48,500
American International Group	$44,569
National Assn of Realtors	$44,000
National Fedn of Independent Business	$41,500
National Beer Wholesalers Association	$40,800
National Restaurant Association	$40,000
Securities Industry & Financial Mkt Association	$39,693

In addition to casinos and leadership PACs, lobbyists have propped up Ensign's campaigns with $349,550, placing them among his top 20 industry donors. Given the nature of the scandal, lobbyists may now try to distance themselves from the senator, at least as long as he is in the spotlight.

Since 1994, lobbyists and their immediate family members have given Ensign $414,750 through his candidate committee and leadership PAC, which is more 35 other current members of the Senate. He collected his biggest haul from the influence-peddlers during the 2006 election cycle, when Ensign was running for re-election, at $131,050. (Note: This includes contributions from registered lobbyists and anyone who works at lobbying firms.)

Since the start of the 2008 election cycle, at least 53 registered lobbyists have contributed $52,250 to Ensign's coffers and at least two of them once worked for Ensign. That includes Aaron Cohen, who has given Ensign the most at $3,500, was once a legislative aide for the senator and now works for Jeffrey J. Kimbell & Associates; and Bryan Cunningham, who served as a policy advisor to Ensign, has donated $2,500 to his campaigns and now works for Polaris Government Relations.

Eight former staffers in total have taken a spin through the Revolving Door between the public sector (Ensign's office) and the private sector.

BGR Holding produced the largest number of registered lobbyists to contribute to the senator since the start of 2007. Six of BGR's current registered lobbyists gave Ensign a combined $3,500 in that time. Interestingly, Cunningham also worked for BGR last year.

These are the registered lobbyists to contribute the most money to Ensign's campaign committee and leadership PAC since the start of the 2008 election cycle (including donations from lobbyists' immediate family members):

Ensign is at the center of another contentious issue this month. He and 22 other members of the Senate Finance Committee are trying to hash out a controversial health care system overhaul. Three of the registered lobbyists to give Ensign the most in contributions since 2007 -- Cohen, Cunningham and Hazen Marshall, who has given Ensign $3,000 -- work for firms with some well-heeled clients in the health industry.

All of the clients at Cohen's firm, Jeffrey J. Kimbell & Assoc., are health-related companies, including pharmaceutical and health product companies Roche Holdings, Allergan Inc. and Astellus Pharma USA. The firm has collected $557,450 so far this year.

Marshall's clients at Nickles Group, which was been paid nearly $3.5 million for its lobbying services in the first half of this year, include the American Hospital Association, big pharmaceutical companies Bristol-Myers Squibb, Eli Lilly & Co. and medical-device maker Medtronic.

Eli Lilly & Co. also hired BGR Holding this year to represent its interests on Capitol Hill. The firm's other clients include Generex Biotech Corp., and pharmaceutical companies GlaxoSmithKline, Pfizer and Wyeth. BGR was paid $8.2 million in the first half of the year.

Furthermore, the New York Times piece outlines how two specific companies that have backed Ensign with campaign contributions worked with Doug Hampton after he left Ensign's office and began working for Slanker's November Inc. These two Nevada-based companies are NV Energy and Allegiant Air.

Over the years, employees of Allegiant Air -- especially its president Maurice Gallagher and his wife, Marcia, who have been prolific donors -- contributed at least $204,000 to federal candidates and committees, including $14,900 to Ensign.

Other top recipients include:

the National Republican Senatorial Committee, $20,000 in 2008

Rep. Shelley Berkley (D-Nev), $5,800 since 2004

Sen. Jon Kyl (R-Ariz), $5,714 in 2006

Sen. Susan Collins (R-Maine), $5,300 in 2007, and the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, $5,000 in 2008.

Nevada Reps. Dean Heller, a Republican, and Dina Titus, a Democrat, also benefited from contributions from Allegiant Air's employees. Heller received $3,300 since 2006, and Titus received $2,300 in 2008.

For its part, employees of NV Energy have contributed $397,470 to federal candidates and committees since 1989. Again, Ensign was the top recipient, receiving $54,590 from NV Energy employees since 1993.

Other top recipients include:

Sen. Harry Reid (D-Nev.), $41,650 since 1989

Rep. Shelley Berkley (D-Nev.) $36,800 since 1997

the Republican National Committee $36,450 since 1993

Rep. Dean Heller (R-Nev.), $21,499 since 2005

the National Republican Senatorial Committee $15,000 since 2007

Rep. Dina Titus (D-Nev.) $9,750 since 2007 and

Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz) $6,550 since 2007.

Third quarter fundraising reports are due on Oct. 15. After that time, we'll be taking a close look at Ensign's contributions and returns. Be sure to check back on Capital Eye for updates after that time.

CRP Senior Researcher Douglas Weber and researcher Carolyn Sharpe contributed to this report.

Dear Madam Secretary:

Please accept the attached statements as an amendment to my 2004 Public Financial Disclosure. In a letter dated August 29, 2005, the Select Committee on Ethics requested that I provide detailed statements of the underlying assets of each RBC Dain Rausher account as listed on Part IIA: Publicly Traded Assets and Unearned Income Sources, items 5, 6 and 7.

Should you have any questions or require any additional information, please contact Tinna Jackson, my executive assistant at (202) 224-4005.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

JOHN ENSIGN
UNITED STATES SENATOR

Washington, DC 20530

Dear [REDACTED]

I am writing on behalf of Senator John Thune in response to your request of June 23, 2010 for certain records from Senator Thune's office files potentially pertinent to a pending investigation.

In accord with the Standing Rules of the Senate and Senate practice, Senator Thune is pleased to make the requested records located through the office's search available for review by attorneys, investigators, or agents in, or working with, your office for informal working use in connection with the Department's pending investigation. The records are also being sent, in PDF format, by electronic mail, directly to the FBI case agent, as you requested. They have been Bates-stamped JT-001 - JT-014. The only redactions are of wholly unrelated appointments and events on the Senator's schedule for March 12, 2009, as marked on JT-008 - JT-011. If you would like to review the unredacted document, that can also be made available.

Consistent with the Senate's rules, neither your office nor the FBI will be permitted at this time to make any formal use or dissemination of these records, other than by showing the records to individuals who have already had access to them, without the express permission of the Senator. These records remain the property of the Senate, under the control of the Senate, and no privileges are being waived by making them available to your office. Should there arise a need for your office to make any formal evidentiary or other use of the records outside your office, you will need to make a further request in order that, under the Senate's Standing Rules, formal authorization may be sought from the Senate for release of Senate office records in order to accommodate such a request. Subject to these understandings, we are pleased to be able to assist your office's investigation.

Sincerely,

Morgan J. Frankel

Dear

I am writing on behalf of Senator Richard J. Durbin in response to your request of June 23, 2010 for certain records from Senator Durbin's office files potentially pertinent to a pending investigation.

In accord with the Standing Rules of the Senate and Senate practice, Senator Durbin is pleased to make the requested records located through the office's search available for review by attorneys, investigators, or agents in, or working with, your office for informal working use in connection with the Department's pending investigation. The records are also being sent, in PDF format, by electronic mail, directly to the FBI case agent, as you requested. They have been Bates-stamped RD-001 - RD-002.

Consistent with the Senate's rules, neither your office nor the FBI will be permitted at this time to make any formal use or dissemination of these records, other than by showing the records to individuals who have already had access to them, without the express permission of the Senator. These records remain the property of the Senate, under the control of the Senate, and no privileges are being waived by making them available to your office. Should there arise a need for your office to make any formal evidentiary or other use of the records outside your office, you will need to make a further request in order that, under the Senate's Standing Rules, formal authorization may be sought from the Senate for release of Senate office records in order to accommodate such a request. Subject to these understandings, we are pleased to be able to assist your office's investigation.

Sincerely,

Morgan J. Frankel

- 1) Documents regarding [redacted] or ALLEGIANT AIRLINES for the time-period of 04/30/2008 through 06/23/2010.

On 07/19/2010, SA [redacted] received U.S. Senator DORGAN's response to the aforementioned formal written request. Through written correspondence, it was represented that no documents were located within U.S. Senator DORGAN's senatorial office which were considered responsive to the United States Department of Justice's (DOJ's) official request for document production. However, six (6) documents identified as E-mail chains were located that contained isolated references to ALLEGIANT AIRLINES and issues related to air-service to the State of North Dakota. Copies of these six (6) unresponsive documents will be made available to DOJ for informal review upon request.

Dear

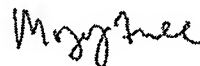

I am writing on behalf of Senator Byron L. Dorgan in response to your request of June 23, 2010 for certain records from Senator Dorgan's office files potentially pertinent to a pending investigation.

The records potentially responsive to your request located through the office's search fall into three categories: (1) reprints of public press articles, generally from on-line sources circulated by electronic mail; (2) a lengthy airline industry study with a single mention of Allegiant Air in a footnote; and (3) six documents, totaling nine pages, comprising emails or strings of emails containing isolated references to Allegiant, primarily dealing with issues of air service to North Dakota and airport or airline service development grants. None of the documents located in the Senator's office responsive to your request touches upon matters that are the subject of your investigation. Based on this understanding, you have indicated that the Department has no interest in the production of the first two categories of documents and likely has no interest in the third category.

Accordingly, no documents are being produced on behalf of Senator Dorgan's office under cover of this letter. Should you wish to review the six email documents in the third category, Senator Dorgan has agreed to make them available for your or the Bureau's informal review in our office. If you determined after review that any of these documents was somehow relevant to your investigation, you could then make a specific request for its informal production.

Please let me know if you would like to arrange to review documents in our office.

Sincerely,

Morgan J. Frankel

Dear

I am writing on behalf of Senator Charles E. Schumer in response to your request of June 23, 2010 for certain records from Senator Schumer's office files potentially pertinent to a pending investigation.

In accord with the Standing Rules of the Senate and Senate practice, Senator Schumer is pleased to make the requested records located through the office's search available for review by attorneys, investigators, or agents in, or working with, your office for informal working use in connection with the Department's pending investigation. The records are also being sent, in PDF format, by electronic mail, directly to the FBI case agent, as you requested. They have been Bates-stamped CS-001 - CS-010. The only redactions are headers reflecting the printing of emails by our office in the course of readying them for production to you.

Consistent with the Senate's rules, neither your office nor the FBI will be permitted at this time to make any formal use or dissemination of these records, other than by showing the records to individuals who have already had access to them, without the express permission of the Senator. These records remain the property of the Senate, under the control of the Senate, and no privileges are being waived by making them available to your office. Should there arise a need for your office to make any formal evidentiary or other use of the records outside your office, you will need to make a further request in order that, under the Senate's Standing Rules, formal authorization may be sought from the Senate for release of Senate office records in order to accommodate such a request. Subject to these understandings, we are pleased to be able to assist your office's investigation.

The office received ethics training from the SEC lawyers. [REDACTED] remembers receiving SEC ethics training twice. ENSIGN provided supplemental ethics training to the office by bringing in attorneys who would brief the office staff. [REDACTED] recalled ENSIGN providing supplemental training on two occasions, once _____ assumed _____ took ethics training since it is her understanding that by law all senate staffers are required to go through ethics training. Staff can take the training through a video or a class. The office has a CD copy of the ethics training. There is also a link to the training on the Ethics Committee website. _____ explained that once you complete ethics training, you are required to sign a form certifying that you took the training. This form must also be signed by the Ethics Certification Officer. During 2007 through 2008, _____ was the Ethics Certification Officer and during late 2008 to 2009 it was _____

b7c

Copies of these certification forms are kept in personnel files that have been maintained in ENSIGN's office going back to 2001. Twice per year, copies of the forms are submitted to the Ethics Committee. Personnel files for _____ are still maintained in ENSIGN's office.

_____ took ethics training on at least two occasions: once upon starting with ENSIGN's office initially, and again upon returning to the office after leaving for five months. _____ recalls that there is a section of training on the one year lobbying ban for former staffers. It was a requirement for everyone.

_____ understanding of the one year lobbying ban was that any senior staff was not allowed to lobby the senate for one year upon their departure. The type of contacts precluded requests for information and any contact intending to influence pending legislation. This included ENSIGN and the entire senate. _____ understood social calls to be allowed. However, any request for information with the intent for the request to influence a staff members decision on the request was forbidden, specifically on the legislative side. _____ understands that the lobbying ban has always been in place and that it is understood in that if someone leaves the office they are not to talk to office personnel for one year.

_____ recalls one instance which was well within the one year lobbying ban where _____ contacted _____ to request that an event be added to ENSIGN's agenda. At the time of _____ call, which occurred on a Friday, _____ was out of the office at a movie and did not have her calendar or Blackberry with her. _____ asked _____ if an item was going to be discussed and when _____ told him no, _____ asked her if the item could be included with the list of things to be discussed. _____ was not the scheduler at the time and notified _____ via email that _____ was asking about an event and that he wanted something put on ENSIGN's scheduling conference call agenda. At the time, _____ did not think anything of it. The following Monday, _____ followed up with _____ who advised that she was going to ignore the request.

The [REDACTED] were suffering from financial hardships, and were having a hard time selling their house in Las Vegas. ENSIGN would try to set [REDACTED] up with a comparable salary. ENSIGN admitted he gave the [REDACTED] money to assist with their transition back to Las Vegas. No specific amount was mentioned, but [REDACTED] had the impression it was a significant amount. [REDACTED] asked for more money from ENSIGN, but ENSIGN refused. [REDACTED] advised that ENSIGN's disclosure made him sick to his stomach, and did not have much to say in response to this information. [REDACTED] did advise ENSIGN that he thought it was horribly reckless to give the public the perception that he was possibly pursuing the next presidential election (Iowa), knowing that he had engaged in an extra-marital affair. ENSIGN asked for [REDACTED] forgiveness a number of times throughout the confession. [REDACTED] was concerned this information would be made public by someone other than ENSIGN. Based upon his conversation with ENSIGN, [REDACTED] had the impression [REDACTED] had focused more and more on money, and was becoming more vengeful. Senator ENSIGN's demeanor was calm, and gave the impression that the matter was under control and would be going away.

Dear [Redacted]

I am writing on behalf of Senator Jim DeMint in response to your request of June 23, 2010 for certain records from Senator DeMint's office files potentially pertinent to a pending investigation.

In accord with the Standing Rules of the Senate and Senate practice, Senator DeMint is pleased to make the requested records located through the office's search available for review by attorneys, investigators, or agents in, or working with, your office for informal working use in connection with the Department's pending investigation. The records are also being sent, via Federal Express, directly to the FBI case agent, as you requested. They have been Bates-stamped JD-001 - JD-106.

Consistent with the Senate's rules, neither your office nor the FBI will be permitted at this time to make any formal use or dissemination of these records, other than by showing the records to individuals who have already had access to them, without the express permission of the Senator. These records remain the property of the Senate, under the control of the Senate, and no privileges are being waived by making them available to your office. Should there arise a need for your office to make any formal evidentiary or other use of the records outside your office, you will need to make a further request in order that, under the Senate's Standing Rules, formal authorization may be sought from the Senate for release of Senate office records in order to accommodate such a request. Subject to these understandings, we are pleased to be able to assist your office's investigation.

Sincerely,

Patricia Mack Bryan

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Doug Hampton Issues Statement

LAS VEGAS, MARCH 9, 2011 – Doug Hampton, through his attorney, released the following statement:

I continue to be extremely disappointed by John's callousness and lack of remorse for destroying my family and life. His selfish, steadfast refusal to resign immediately prolongs the pain and anguish he caused. It also requires us to continue to cooperate with the Senate Ethics investigation, including disrupting our lives by requiring myself, Cindy and others close to us to return to Washington D.C. to be deposed. The cost to the taxpayers of this fruitless exercise flies in the face of John's claim of being fiscally conservative and a protector of the taxpayer's money, much like his affair with my wife flew in the face of his claim to moral righteousness.

Doug Hampton

At this point during the interview, [REDACTED] was shown a copy of a memorandum, dated January 28, 2009, which detailed a telephone call between the DOT Secretary and Senator JOHN ENSIGN. The memorandum also included a copy of "Suggested Talking Points", and a copy of a handwritten page titled "Ensign Call". [REDACTED] indicated this memorandum looked familiar to other types of memorandums she had prepared, but [REDACTED] could not specifically recall this particular document. [REDACTED] was very busy during her time with the Office of Government Affairs, and estimated that she produced three (3) to ten (10) memorandums per day. Although [REDACTED] did not recall this memorandum, [REDACTED] had no reason not to believe that she had prepared it.

DOT Secretary Ray LaHood had just been appointed to DOT, and because of this, most of his meetings focused on the Recovery Act, Mexican trucks, or were "meet and greets" with the Secretary. [REDACTED] recalled the request call from Senator ENSIGN to Secretary LaHood, in which ENSIGN asked LaHood to meet with the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of Allegiant Air (Allegiant). This was a different type of request, and unusual from the previous meeting requests [REDACTED] had worked on. [REDACTED] could not recall specifically how this meeting request had been made. [REDACTED] did not believe this request had been initially made via email, because [REDACTED] had searched her archived emails, but could not locate any reference to this meeting.

_____ was next shown a copy of the email between _____ of Allegiant, and _____ dated February 26, 2009. _____ is a career employee with the DOT Office of Government Affiars. The email included an Allegiant company profile and biographical information for _____. _____ had been CC'd on the email. Although _____ did not recall receiving this email, _____ indicated that it was not unusual for the office to receive this type of background information, since it helped prepare the Secretary for the meeting.

_____ was then shown a copy of the handwritten "Ensign Call" note. _____ did not recognize the handwriting used in the note.

_____ did not recall any follow up with Senator ENSIGN's office in preparation for the meeting. _____ did not maintain any notes. Once a meeting was concluded, _____ trashed her notes, which pertained to a particular meeting. All memorandums addressed to the Secretary were maintained on a shared computer drive. In addition, _____ did not utilize an Outlook calendar, but believed her phone number during this time _____ was the same number listed on the memorandum.

_____ could not recall any specifics in preparation for the phone call between Senator ENSIGN and Secretary LaHood. Typically, when a Congressional member called, it was _____ understanding that the call was to discuss official business, and the member was calling on behalf of the member's office. It was clear if a personal call was made to the DOT Secretary. The nature of the call was usually conveyed to _____. _____ made this determination once contact had been made with the member's staff, and would have been noted somewhere in the memorandum. Personal calls between Congressional members and the secretary were rare. Based on the memorandum dated January 28, 2009, _____ opined that the call between Senator ENSIGN and Secretary LaHood was not personal in nature. _____ was not sure whether or not a meeting between Senator ENSIGN and Secretary LaHood ever took place.

The talking points prepared for the Secretary were based on what the Secretary would say during a particular call or meeting; however, the Secretary would often go "off script". The "scripts" prepared for the Secretary were just a recommendation, and the Secretary often changed them. _____ never sat in on any calls or meetings.

Usually, a request for a meeting with the DOT Secretary was made by phone or by email. Most of the requests came through [REDACTED] and most were typically from a congressional member's staff; however, from time to time, a member would personally contact DOT for a meeting. This was a rare occurrence. DOT would respond to the request, and once scheduled, a memorandum to the Secretary was prepared. Preparation of the memorandum was staffed out to various people within the office. [REDACTED] would also pass along the meeting topics or issues to the assigned DOT employee if [REDACTED] knew what the topics were about. Sometimes [REDACTED] knew very little about the meeting, and she had to have her staff follow up with the congressional member's office to find out the details or talking points of the meeting. Any notes [REDACTED] would have taken about each meeting would also have been turned over to DOT staff so they could better prepare the memorandum. Sometimes these notes were written on a "Post-It" note, or a scrap piece of paper.

b7C

[REDACTED] would have prepared the memorandum for this particular phone call, and [REDACTED] would have made edits before it was sent to the DOT Secretary. Initially, [REDACTED] did not specifically remember this telephone call between Senator ENSIGN and Secretary LaHood, but after some recollection, [REDACTED] did remember the call because of the talking points about [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] believed she would have spoken to someone from Senator ENSIGN's staff in order to get the details concerning the consideration of [REDACTED] for the [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] probably would have spoken to the same staffer who had requested the meeting on behalf of Senator ENSIGN, but [REDACTED] could not recall who had requested the call. Ultimately, [REDACTED]

The call between ENSIGN and LaHood would have taken place in Secretary LaHood's office, and would have only lasted three minutes or so. LaHood considers the use of a speaker phone to be impersonal, so he would repeat some of the talking points to [REDACTED] as the call went along. [REDACTED] explained her notes taken during the call:

At the time of the March 11, 2009 meeting, [redacted] did not know anything about the attendees representing Allegiant. [redacted] would have read the Allegiant biographies attached to the memo in order to better familiarize herself with the company and the company's representatives. [redacted] had never met [redacted] prior to this meeting, and did not recall ever meeting [redacted] while working on Capitol Hill. [redacted] did not recall [redacted] saying anything specific during the meeting. [redacted] believed [redacted] worked as [redacted] within Allegiant's Government Affairs Office. Based on the memo and talking points, it appeared to [redacted] that several items were discussed, to include:

b6
b7C

- Summary of the Allegiant Enforcement Consent Order (Consent Order).
- FAA Reauthorization.
- Substantive issues relating to the airline industry and Allegiant.

The March 11, 2009 meeting was not personal in nature, and took place in the Lincoln Room, which is Secretary LaHood's conference room. Three representatives from Allegiant attended the meeting, along with [redacted] from the FAA (based on the schedule), although, [redacted] could not remember [redacted] being at the meeting. The meeting probably lasted less than 30 minutes. [redacted] did the majority of the talking, and provided an overall rundown of Allegiant. [redacted] did not remember any of the other topics, but did recall that the 2008 consent order issued against Allegiant was discussed. [redacted] was shown a copy of her notes from the meeting, but she still could not recall any other specifics. [redacted] did remember that there was never any mention of Senator ENSIGN facilitating the meeting between Allegiant and Secretary LaHood.

b7CINTRODUCTION TO [REDACTED] THROUGH U.S. SENATOR
JOHN E. ENSIGN

In 03/2008, ENSIGN telephoned [REDACTED] at his office and asked [REDACTED] to meet with [REDACTED]. At the time, [REDACTED] had no prior knowledge of [REDACTED]. ENSIGN subsequently identified [REDACTED] as ENSIGN's [REDACTED] in Washington, D.C.

b7C

ENSIGN explained that [REDACTED] and moving back to Nevada in order to be close to his family. ENSIGN also stated that [REDACTED] was opening a consulting business and looking for work. ENSIGN then advised [REDACTED] that [REDACTED] may be able to assist [REDACTED] with Indian tribe matters that arise in the future.

During their telephone conversation, ENSIGN never mentioned the term "lobbying" nor described [REDACTED]. ENSIGN also never described the type of work [REDACTED] planned to do through his consulting business.

[REDACTED] related that he had no business reason to meet with [REDACTED]. However, he agreed to meet with [REDACTED] as a courtesy to ENSIGN. [REDACTED] stated he never felt pressured by ENSIGN to meet with [REDACTED] or find work for him.

After receiving ENSIGN's telephone call, [REDACTED] telephonically contacted [REDACTED] and advised [REDACTED] of his conversation with ENSIGN. [REDACTED] was curious about ENSIGN's request for [REDACTED] to meet with [REDACTED] advised [REDACTED] to take the meeting in order to find out what this was all about. [REDACTED] then told [REDACTED] to let him know what transpired during the meeting.

[REDACTED] met with [REDACTED] Las Vegas office on 03/14/2008. This meeting lasted approximately fifteen (15) minutes. [REDACTED] were the only participants in this meeting.

A few days prior to 03/14/2008, [REDACTED] received another telephone call from ENSIGN to arrange the proposed meeting with [REDACTED] also believes he received a subsequent telephone call or E-mail message from [REDACTED] to confirm their scheduled meeting.

b6
b7C

[REDACTED] informed that interviewing agent that he had never heard of [REDACTED] until receiving ENSIGN's initial telephone call. [REDACTED] also had no prior knowledge of ENSIGN being close friends with [REDACTED].

During their meeting, [REDACTED] related that he was relocating back to Nevada from Washington, D.C. and starting a political consulting business. [REDACTED] also bragged that he was ENSIGN's [REDACTED] ENSIGN's senatorial office.

[REDACTED] represented that he could assist [REDACTED] and his company with both federal and state issues. [REDACTED] specifically stated that he had contacts in Washington, D.C. and was capable of getting things done on the federal level. New York Times* Article, Timeline, and Supporting Documents regarding Senator John Ensign's (R-NV) illegal lobbying relationship with former staffer turned lobbyist Doug Hampton

Senator John Ensign, Republican of Nevada, left, hired Doug Hampton, an old friend, as an aide in 2006. Mr. Ensign has admitted having an affair with Mr. Hampton's wife, Cindy, his campaign treasurer.

Enters National Politics

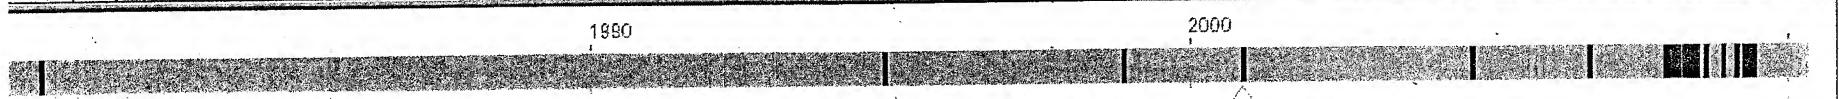

Mr. Ensign, a veterinarian, upsets an incumbent to win a seat representing Las Vegas in the House of Representatives as part of the so-called "Republican Revolution."

Lennox McLendon/Associated Press

Mr. Ensign ran on a conservative platform, and had silver-haired, statesman's looks and family money - his father helped found a Las Vegas casino.

November 2000

New Chamber

Mr. Ensign is elected to the Senate, outspending his opponent by two to one.

Jeff Klein/Associated Press

On election night, Nevada Gov. Kenny Guinn, left, celebrated Mr. Ensign's victory with him.

Capitol Hill Job

Mr. Ensign hires Mr. Hampton as a top Senate aide, a move that irritates some staffers, who think his loyal friendship and his background as an executive at a military contractor did not qualify him for the senior post. Mr. Hampton commutes between Washington and Las Vegas.

Trip to Iraq

On a Congressional trip to Iraq, Mr. Ensign calls Ms. Hampton almost every morning and night. Later she says that when the phone bill came to Mr. Ensign's campaign office, he gave her almost $1,000 in cash to cover it. Mr. Ensign's office later confirms that the senator gave Ms. Hampton "enough cash to cover the personal charges."

His office later denies that any improper action, saying that "since the fees incurred from the personal use were paid directly to the telephone company from Senator Ensign's personal funds, the campaign was not required to disclose this particular payment."

U.S. Army

Mr. Ensign toured military installations in Iraq.

Confrontation

On Valentine's Day, Senator Tom Coburn, Republican of Oldahoma, and other close acquaintances of Mr. Ensign confront him over the affair. Mr. Coburn, an ordained deacon, takes the lead in questioning Mr. Ensign, and warns that he will tell the Senate Majority Leader, Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, about the affair unless Mr. Ensign ends it.

No Mention of Affair

During President's Day weekend, Mr. Ensign tells Michael Slanker, once Mr. Ensign's top fund raiser and political consultant, that Mr. Hampton is unexpectedly leaving Washington. Mr. Slanker now works as a top official at the National Republican Senatorial Committee, which Mr. Ensign chairs. In their conversation, Mr. Ensign says that Ms. Hampton is ill and that Mr. Hampton is tired of the commute. He does not mention the affair. Mr. Slanker offers to help by restarting a dormant political consulting firm that he and his wife, Lindsey, formed, and hiring Mr. Hampton.

Lobbying Contract Signed

Mr. Hampton and November Inc. sign a contract with NV Energy for "government affairs consulting." The contract calls for Mr. Hampton to make "elected official contact" and to perform "lobbying coordination." Soon afterward, Mr. Hampton signs a contract with a second client, Allegiant Air, a Las Vegas-based airline. Each contract calls for Mr. Hampton to earn $5,000 a month.

Lobbying for Allegiant

After a request from Mr. Hampton, Senator Ensign calls Transportation Secretary Mary Peters to plead the case for Allegiant Air in a dispute with her department. The airline is under investigation for deceptively tacking on a "convenience fee" on tickets it sold over the Internet. Mr. Hampton wanted Mr. Ensign to object to the investigation, or at least get a status report on the inquiry. The appeal ultimately fails, although half of a $50,000 fine is suspended.

Lunch at the Capitol

Mr. Ensign has lunch in the Senate Dining Room with Mr. Hampton and Allegiant Air's chief executive, Maurice J. Gallagher, among other guests. That same day, Mr. Hampton and Mr. Gallagher meet with Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood to discuss Allegiant's business affairs. At Mr. Hampton's request, Mr. Ensign had telephoned the secretary directly to set up the meeting.

Ensign Divulges Affair

In a hastily called news conference, Senator Ensign admits to the affair, saying it was "the worst thing I have ever done in my life."

"If there was ever anything in my life that I could take back, this would be it. I take full responsibility for my actions," Mr. Ensign says. "I know that I have deeply hurt and disappointed my wife Darlene, my children, my family, my friends, my staff and others who believed in me. To all of them, especially my wife, I am deeply sorry."

■ Senator Says He Had Affair With an Aide

Isaac Brekken/Associated Press

February 2008: Senator Ensign, confronted by his colleagues at the religiously affiliated C Street House where he lives in Washington's Capitol Hill neighborhood, agreed to write and send a letter to [REDACTED] apologizing for the affair, and accepting blame. He also told his C Street housemates, including Senator Tom Coburn, Republican of Oklahoma, that he would end the affair. However, [REDACTED] told The Times that Mr. Ensign called her the next day, urging her to disregard the letter.

Sept. 15, 2008: The Department of Transportation issued a fine against Allegiant Air, despite a July 2008 appeal by Mr. Ensign. The senator telephoned Transportation Secretary Mary Peters, after Mr. Hampton requested that such a call be made. Senator Ensign's office says that Mr. Hampton did not motivate the call as the senator had separately spoken with Allegiant's chief executive. Allegiant consistently contested the allegation that it violated federal rules. As a concession to Allegiant, half of the fine was withheld.

Nov. 19, 2008: Mr. Ensign sent a letter to Interior Secretary Dick Kempthorne urging that his agency take final action on the environmental impact report relating to NV Energy. [REDACTED] since early that same summer, had been discussing the topic with Mr. Ensign's office. Mr. Ensign's office said this letter was motivated by a long-standing concern for NV Energy and Nevada energy needs, not any request from [REDACTED]
